Michael Devine

Dinner Is Served

Author, editor, and fabric designer Michael Devine can add another accomplishment to his resumé—tabletop designer. After seeing her work in Paris, Devine teamed up with Marie Daâge—unparalleled as a designer and painter of French porcelain—to create a colorful faux bois pattern based on his “Thomas” fabric (michaeldevinehome.com). Available in four colors, this versatile pattern is a charming addition to the table.

Shine Creations

Tray Chic

Some might argue there is nothing more useful than a tray—as a resting spot for the remote, an elegant method for offering drinks, or a pretty way to serve breakfast in bed. These beauties from Shine Creations (212/840-9212, x302) are made with inlaid bone designs and come in a rainbow of summery colors to brighten up mundane tasks.

Jonathan Adler

Adler’s iconic prints and snappy sayings—like “Are We There Yet?” and “This Is Mine”—update best-selling styles from the international brand of premium travel, business, and lifestyle accessories. Included are luggage tags, pouches, packing cubes, and carryalls in an array of groovy designs. (jonathanadler.com) —Clara Haneberg

Barry Dixon

Seamlessly merging time-honored traditions and functional designs is one of the ways in which designer Barry Dixon and Charleston-based Avrett (avrett.com) excel. Dixon’s exclusive 10-piece collection for the award-winning manufacturer includes light fixtures (like this “Magnolia Pod Pendant”), tables, and upholstered pieces—all available in custom sizes and finishes. The new offerings blend old-world techniques and modern concepts.

Paddywax

Craving the smell of summer but there isn’t a beach nearby? Simply light the “Sea Salt & Surf” candle from Paddywax’s Happy collection and let the smell of tropical bay breeze fill your home. The 8-ounce soy-wax concoction comes in a white glass vessel and is hand-poured. Each mood-lifting fragrance is cleverly packaged and adorned with a smile-inducing quote. (paddywax.com) —C.H.
